

A SCOUT IS THRIFTY.

The Ninth Scout Law is the Law of Unselfishness. You may not think so at first sight, but so it is. You can't help others, unless you have got something to help them with. And you can't have anything in hand, if you spend it as soon as you get it. In our picture you see the hives with their store of honey. So is the Scout who saves. Another has a basket of vegetables. He has grown them in his spare time (instead of wasting it). And he is the better example. For waste of time property, or health is the real cause of poverty and want.
