

THOUGHTS
ON THRIFT

These thoughts appear
on the benches in
rotunda of
THE DIME SAVINGS BANK OF BROOKLYN
DeKalb Avenue and Fulton Street

Neither a borrower or a lender be—For a loan
oft loses both itself
and friend and bor-
rowing dulls the edge
of husbandry.

He is rich enough who
owes nothing.

A little each day is much
in a year.

A pendulum travels
much but it only goes
a tick at a time.

He who saves in little
things can be liberal
in great ones.

He who moves not forward goes backward.

Care preserves what industry gains.

Every man's house is his safest refuge.

There is no place more delightful than one's own fireside.

Ready money works great cures.

Honors come by diligence—
Riches spring from economy.

Economy is a great
revenue.

Vast is the mighty ocean
—but drops have
made it vast.

From saving comes
having.

He is rich who is satisfied.

The surest way not to fail is to determine to succeed.

Honesty is exact to a penny.

Those who want much are always much in need.

He that gathereth by
labor shall increase.

A penny saved is a
penny earned.

A young man idle; an old man needy.

He that does not save
pennies will never have
dollars.

Ready money is ready
medicine.

A diligence in all things
is the greatest element of success.

Debt is the worst poverty.

A hundred years of vexation will not pay a
farthing of debt.

The first years of man
must make provision
for the last.

Not possession but use
is the only riches.

The mind that is anxious
about the future is
miserable.

Money is not gained by
losing time.

Little and often makes a heap in time.

He who attends to his
own business diligently
should not carelessly
throw away with one
hand what he gathers
with the other.

Begin—To begin is half
the work, let one-half
remain — Begin again
and thou wilt have
finished.

Ask thy purse when thou
shouldst pay.

The hand of the diligent
maketh rich.

Happy is the man to whom God gives with
a sparing hand what
is sufficient for his
wants.

There are but two ways
of paying debts, increase of means of
industry in raising
income, increase of
thrift in laying out.

Step by step one goes
far.

Money is a good servant but a dangerous master.
